AUB 2016 Job Fair: A Remarkable Participation

The American University of Beirut (AUB) organized its Job Fair on campus and the event was met by the remarkable turnout of many Lebanese, Arab and international companies, institutions and banks. They came from varied sectors such as advertising, financial audit, banking, industries, construction, education, engineering, consulting, food, hotels, information technology, administrative consulting, insurance, manufacturing, media and research, pharmacies, press and printing, distribution, retail, shipping, services, telecommunications, trade, tourism and travel, and many more.

More than 140 institutions participated in the fair, and their representatives manned the booths, which became promotional centers, distributing brochures to interested students and helping candidates fill out employment forms for use directly after graduation.

This year the fair included multiple activities, including 25 professional seminars, and more than a hundred job offers were made.

The Job Fair had been inaugurated with an address by AUB’s Dean of Student Affairs Dr. Talal Nizameddin, who welcomed all participating institutions and students, stressing the significant participation and the nature of the participating institutions, saying that year after year they seek to attract AUB graduates who demonstrate professional aptitude and high scientific ingenuity and moral standards, which are the qualities that really matter to employers. Nizameddin also pointed out to the sizeable number of alumni who find employment opportunities.

The organizers of the fair were congratulated by the participating institutions for the excellent organization and prevailing appropriate atmosphere and for the great seriousness and professionalism of AUB students.
